

The Remus Tucker Band Bio

The Remus Tucker Band came about somewhere around 2012 in Denver, CO. Remus Tucker is The Mountain Man of Rock & Country and no stranger to fun. Born in the backwoods of Michigan, and spending a lot of time in the South, he is lover of country, old time blues and southern rock and this color's his style in many ways. Tucker has played with the likes of Firefall, John Lee Hooker Jr. and has always left crowds satisfied. The artist's influences are many, with vocal styles that are reminiscent of Freddie Mercury, Robert Plant and Geoff Tate. Remus is backed by some of the hottest musicians around – so let's introduce the band:

Lead Guitarist Tom Williams was born in the little town of Galax, Virginia. Galax is at the center of the Old Time and Bluegrass music world on the East Coast, and so naturally, music was a part of his life early on. Tom got into Southern Rock as a young man, and as a seasoned guitarist, he looks forward to throwing down at a Remus Tucker show near YOU.

Rhythm guitarist Jimmie Clinton hails from the back woods of Tennessee. He learned his craft at the knee of his father, Jimmie Clinton Sr, who was a Nashville singer and song writer. Jimmie looks forward to making you get up and boogie at any Remus show.

groove going for Remus.

Bass player and Webmaster/Manager Chris Love grew up just outside of Chicago and “did time” in CA, AZ and MD before landing in Colorado. Playing bass and guitar since 1986 from Chicago to Nashville to Denver, Chris is no stranger to the music scene. He has quickly become one of the go to bassists for hire in the Denver area for country, rock, southern rock, classic rock and original projects. Chris handles the guitar and bass maintenance for the band as well. Count on him to keep a bass

As a youngster, drummer Ryan Luther watched his cousin play along to Billy Joel's “Pressure”; he's been playing drums since. Performing went to the back burner after relocating to Northern Colorado. Yet a more recent move to the mountains crossed the path of Remus and the fellas...time to get back behind the skins and ROCK!

In 2013 the band released their first album South of New Orleans which gained them a loyal fanbase, global radio airplay and performances at various local and regional festivals including the Taste of Colorado and People's Fair. They are currently working on their second album due to be released early 2020 and have released 2 singles, “Lonely Mile” and “Come On which are streaming on Pandora and gaining popularity worldwide.
